

Architettura Medievale Armena. De Luca Editore, Roma, 1968, 167 p.

Armenia the Case for a Forgotten Genocide, by Dickran H. Boyajian, Educational Book Crafters, Westwood, New Jersey, 1972.

Armenian Folk-Tales and Fables. Translated by Charles Downing, Illustrated by William Papas. London, Oxford University Press, 1972, 217 pp.

Armenian Folk-tales and Fables is a distinguished contribution to the traditional legends of the East. It falls into three sections—folk-tales, fables and proverbs. Charles Downing has drawn his material from the folk-lore of the remote land of Armenia, a mountainous region which other nations often turned into a battlefield. The tales were told by simple folk—vine-dressers, farmlabourers, millers—and were preserved by word of mouth, to be told for entertainment in the coffee-houses, or at home during the long, hard winters. The fables, selected from the collections of medieval scholars and philosophers, who used them to point a moral, and the expressive, often humorous, proverbs, show the ways of the world through shrewd Armenian eyes.

Corpus Scriptorum Christianorum Orientalium. Corpus Scriptorum Christianorum Orientalium. Ed. Consilio Universitatis Catholicae Americae et Universitatis Catholicae Lovaniensis. VII Series: Aethiopica, Arabica, Armenica, Coptica, Iberica (=Georgica), Syriaca, Subsidia. Textus et Translationes Latinae. Volumes 1—276. 276 volumes. Parisiis et Lovaniae. 1903—1967.

David Kherdian. Homage to Adana. The Perishable Press, Mt. Horeb, Wisconsin, 1970, 44 pp.

Documenti di Architettura Armena (Documents of Armenian Architecture) № 5 AMBERD Facoltà di architettura del Politecnico di Milano. Accademia delle Scienze dell'Armenia Sovietica, Milano, 1972.

Marjorie Housepian. The Smyrna Affair. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, Inc. New York, 1971, 269 pp.

Les Monuments Arméniens du IV-e au XVII-e siècles by Eduart Utudjian. Albert Morance, Paris, 1967, 179 p.

Rachel Hogrogian. The Armenian cookbook. Atheneum Publishers, New York, 1971, 154 pp.

The Turkish Letters of Ogier Ghiselin de Busbecq. Imperial Ambassador at Constantinople 1554—1562. Translated from the Latin. Oxford, 1968, 265 pp.