

A close-up photograph of a book's binding. The spine is visible on the left, showing a light-colored, textured material. The cover material, which appears to be a dark, possibly black or dark brown, textured cloth or leather, is visible on the right. The binding is slightly worn, with some fraying and discoloration visible along the edges.

