

A close-up, vertical view of the fore-edge of a book. The left side shows a light-colored, textured material, likely the inner cover or binding. The right side shows a dark, textured material, likely the outer cover. The spine area in the center is heavily worn, showing significant damage, including tears, fraying, and exposed internal structure.

