

EDITORS' FOREWORD

The editorial team of the journal WISDOM presents the second issue of 2024 to the academic community. This issue features significant contributions addressing fundamental questions in theoretical philosophy, social philosophy, philosophy of education, and philosophy of law.

Despite encountering objective and subjective challenges, WISDOM steadfastly pursues its mission to deliver valuable scientific articles and research to scholars. We remain committed to publishing innovative ideas and concepts while facilitating constructive discussions.

This publication includes insightful studies focused on classical and non-classical logical systems, artificial intelligence, national identity, the history of philosophy, as well as existential, socio-philosophical, and legal-methodological inquiries.

From August 1 to 8, 2024, the 25th World Congress of Philosophy convened at Sapienza University in Rome - a venue aptly named "wisdom". This event observed active participation from members of the Armenian Philosophical Academy, representatives of the WISDOM editorial team, and numerous contributors to our journal. The article titled "25th World Congress of Philosophy and Armenian Philosophical Academy" chronicles this significant event in the philosophical community.

On September 9, 2024, the eminent Armenian philosopher Karen Svazyan passed away in Basel, Switzerland. His research profoundly engaged with key issues in philosophical anthropology, modern European philosophy, gnoseology, and epistemology. The WISDOM editorial team extends its heartfelt condolences to Professor Svazyan's relatives and colleagues, and we feature a memorial article dedicated to him by Professor Oleg Gabrielian in this edition.

The WISDOM staff continues to receive positive feedback regarding our published articles. The Editorial Board extends its sincerest gratitude to all authors, reviewers, professional critics, and assessors of the contributions included.

In light of the importance of pluralism in addressing scientific issues and upholding freedom of speech, we remind our readers that the views expressed in the authors' papers remain their own and may not necessarily reflect the positions of the Editorial Board.
