

A close-up, vertical view of the fore-edge of a thick, antique book. The pages are heavily aged, discolored (yellowish-brown), and show significant wear, including numerous small holes and stains. The binding material, likely dark leather or cloth, is visible along the right edge.

