ARMENIAN PHILOSOPHICAL ACADEMY AND THE JOURNAL "ARMENIAN MIND"

The Armenian Philosophical Academy (APhA) is a scientific non-governmental organisation founded in 1987 in Armenia. The founding president of APhA was Academician Georg Brutian. The Academy has three groups of members - actual members, honorary members, and foreign members. After Georg Brutian died in 2016, the vice president of APhA, Robert Djidjian, was elected as the president of the Academy. APhA regularly organises international scientific conferences in Armenia and abroad.

The goals of the Armenian Philosophical Academy are:

- bringing together the collective potential of Armenian philosophical thought,
- contributing to the development of Armenian philosophical thought and its integration into the world of philosophical thought,
- supporting the cooperation between famous scientists and educational centres in the field of philosophy and the growth of young scientists,
- creating centres for scientific research groups and other intra-academic scientific structural links.

The official journal of APhA was Armenian Mind. The journal was published in English. The journal included the following sections:

- a) articles,
- b) news and views from Armenia and other countries,
- c) Armenian studies centres of the world,
- d) Armenological bibliography.

According to the agreement signed in 1994 between the NAS of RA and APhA, all publications of APhA were published by the NAS RA Publishing House "Science". The purpose of Armenian Mind was to record and spread Armenological achievements, considering that Armenology is the field of study not only of Armenian but also of many foreign researchers.

Since 2007, the publication of Armenian Mind was stopped, and its successor became News and Views - the official journal of the International Academy for Philosophy (the founding president of which was also Academician Georg Brutian).

According to the decision of the new chairmanship of the APhA, the publication of Armenian Mind will be resumed in 2023.
